Fire in the Daggett Building

Yesterday afternoon the cry of fire startled our people, everyone rushing out to learn the location and lend aid. The fire was located in the kitchen of the second floor of the Daggett Building. The ceiling had caught from an over heated stove pipe. The whole building was filled with smoke and as soon as the doors were thrown open, this poured forth in such quantities that the whole block seemed doomed. Prompt action on the part of the "bucket brigade," assisted by the Hughes Mercantile Company boys with their Jacobson extinguishers, soon had the fire under control, with little damage done. Probably the most damage was done by the water.
